Agricultural Reforms

Why in News?

Three government bills were passed by the parliament with intention to bring unprecedented structural reforms in agriculture sector. The first bill is on agricultural market reforms, the second bill is about contract farming provisions and a third bill on amending Essential Commodities Act was passed. These bills would promote barrier-free trade of farm produce and are likely to support farmers because factors like more investments, Culture of Agripreneurship, R&D and technology are supposed to augment existing agriculture supply chain.

Some of the farmer's organisations are vehemently opposing the bills since no consultations were held. Farmers also fear that the sector might become corporatised and their rights may be undermined by Government as sector is de-regulated. The subsequent end of minimum support price (MSP) regime, the irrelevance of state-controlled APMCs, reduction in the price of farm produce due to market domination by big agribusinesses and exploitation of farmers by big contractors are emerging key issues, arising due to the provisions stated under new bills.

Connectedness to the Syllabus

Essay: UPSC may ask candidates to write an essay on the Structural reforms in Agriculture, Agripreneurship: For next generation farming, Minimum support price (MSP) regime, Tech driven farming and E-agriculture marketing, APMC and federalism, Ways to augment supply chain for doubling farmer's income and Scope of Contract farming in climate resilient precision farming etc.

Social security

Why in News?

Lok Sabha has passed new versions of three labour codes —Industrial Relations Code Bill, 2020, Code on Social Security Bill, 2020 and Occupational Safety, Health and Working Conditions Code Bill, 2020. These three codes would amalgamate existing labour laws ranging from wage, safety to social security. These reforms are cited as pro-industry and pro-employer while undermining the labours concerns.

The government proposes to increase the ambit of social security by including gig workers and inter-state migrant workers, it has also proposed measures that will provide greater flexibility to employers to hire and fire workers without government permission. Labour community is concerned that Government is deliberately curbing the rights of workers to strike and their voices and demands may be undermined.

Connectedness to the Syllabus
